

From the Corner Office

Is there a faster-growing or more important sector in the New Jersey economy than the healthcare industry? In the past few years alone we've seen tremendous changes and consolidation including the merger that created RWJBarnabas Health. We've seen growth in all areas of the state from University Hospital in Newark to Cooper University Hospital in Camden. And just weeks ago, Kennedy Health and Jefferson entered into an agreement that will shape the future of healthcare in southern New Jersey.

PS&S has made important, strategic moves to ensure we are well-positioned to assist with the continued growth in the healthcare industry in New Jersey. A few weeks ago, we announced the hiring of Marge DellaVecchia as our new Senior Director, based in our Cherry Hill office, and you can read more about Marge and her career in the accompanying profile piece. Marge's knowledge of both the private and public sectors will combine with the skills of architects Charles Clauser, Harry Wright and Steve Sgro to create a formidable team in southern New Jersey. The three men joined PS&S last year, providing architectural and interior design, project planning and graphics and rendering services with a concentration in the healthcare sector.

We're also very happy to highlight one of our most distinctive projects in this newsletter. Before you read this month's "In Focus" take a look at the photograph in the article and see if you can guess what the challenge was in building this "house." PS&S's full array of services and talents were on display for this Jersey-shore project, proving once again PS&S is a "one-stop-shop" for architecture and engineering excellence.
