

UPDATES & INFO

AUGUST 2014

From the Corner Office

By Anthony Sartor, CEO, and John Sartor, President and COO

For four decades, PS&S has been the industry leader in providing engineering and design expertise to the region's key energy utilities. We've been a consistent presence, though it's fair to say the nature of the business has changed substantially.

FOCUS ON: L. Miguel Salinas

For executives and professionals involved in the electric utilities industry, the past few years have been enormously challenging as a result of catastrophic natural disasters – first, Hurricane Katrina along the Gulf Coast and more recently Superstorm Sandy – and disabling service stoppages, such as the massive 2008 power outages that left tens of millions of people in the Northeast in the dark.

SPOTLIGHT: Walter F. Judge

During his more than 22 years with PS&S, Walt Judge has seen his role change substantially. Having effectively served the firm's gaming/hospitality clients for more than a decade, he now finds himself providing similar services to the firm's energy utility clients.
